

Introducing the World Nutrition Editorial Board

The editors of World Nutrition are proud to introduce the journal's newly established Editorial Board, with information about each of them presented in the following pages. We believe they represent an impressive selection of the professionals active currently in our field around the world. (Among those in the Eastern Hemisphere, their countries of residence are highlighted on the global map preceding this title.) They are 34 public health nutrition leaders in research, in academia, and in field-based operations. Their agreement to serve on our board is an expression of their faith in the World Public Health Nutrition Association, in this journal, and in our orientation toward what is needed to improve nutrition for all, for example, the need for our profession to maintain among ourselves and to demand of others freedom from conflicts of interest involving the ultra-processed food industry.

For future reference, they are also now listed on our journal masthead at <https://worldnutritionjournal.org/index.php/wn/about/editorialTeam>

We would be pleased to welcome additional members to the Board. If you are interested in serving, please contact me at tedgreiner@yahoo.com
